

Honoring Sherman James:
A Symposium on John Henryism
and Social Inequalities
May 13, 2014

8:30-9 Coffee and registration, Fleishman Commons, Sanford Building

9-9:10 Welcome, Sanford Room 04

9:10 – 9:40 Victor Schoenbach, University of North Carolina: “Epidemiology What? The Life and Times of Sherman A. James”

9:40 – 10:10 Harold Neighbors, University of Michigan: “Personal Reflections on the Man, Sherman James: Scholar Mentor”

10:10 – 10:40 Arline Geronimus, University of Michigan: “Beyond Trust and Baboons: The High-hanging Fruits of an Authentic Alternative Psychosocial Framework for Social Epidemiology”

10:40 - 11 Break

11 - 11:30 David Strogatz, Bassett Healthcare Network: “Observed and Latent Outcomes of the Edgecombe and Pitt County Studies”

11:30 – 12 Barbara Israel and Cleo Caldwell, University of Michigan: “The Michigan Interlude: A Tribute to Engagement and Vision”

12 – 1:15 Lunch, Fleishman Commons

1:15 – 1:45 Jay Pearson, Duke University: “The Distribution of Objective and Subjective Health Inequities by Race, Ethnicity and Nativity”

1:45 – 2:15 Robert Korstad, Duke University: "Eastern North Carolina’s Long Civil Rights Movement”

2:15 – 2:45 Charles Clotfelter, Helen (Sunny) Ladd and Jacob Vigdor, Duke University: "Race and Educational Opportunity in North Carolina"

2:45 – 3:05 Break

3:05 – 3:25 Mina Silberberg, Duke University: “Using Community-Based Participatory Research to Improve the Health of African Americans in Durham, North Carolina”

3:25 – 3:45 Jay Kaufman, McGill University: “Sherman James as Renaissance Epidemiologist: Does Humanistic Epidemiology Have a Future in Highly Sub-Specialized and Methodologized Scientific Research?”

4:00 Reception, Fleishman Commons